

Facing the Challenges Ahead

Business 'more or less' as usual

hgkc has always been a virtual team, and we want to assure you all that we will continue to provide advice and help as though it were “business as usual” - we have always been on the end of the phone for our clients and will continue to be there.

However, in line with the guidance we are receiving, we are making arrangements for future workshops and meetings to be run online.

Finding a following wind

It has been said that ‘a sailor who doesn’t know where they are going cannot expect to find a following wind’.

We believe business can and must still carry on through this crisis.

We are developing a series of free webinars to help you plan and navigate your way through the challenging times that we are all facing.